CANTO SCREEN ROOM DIVIDERS

Draks sliding room dividers and room partitions use a bottom-weighted sliding system which may be surface mounted or a rebated track in the floor.

The doors become an integral part of the room. The infills can be semi-transparent laminated glass which allow light to pass through whilst offering privacy or a clear laminated glass.

SLIDING DOORS SYSTEM

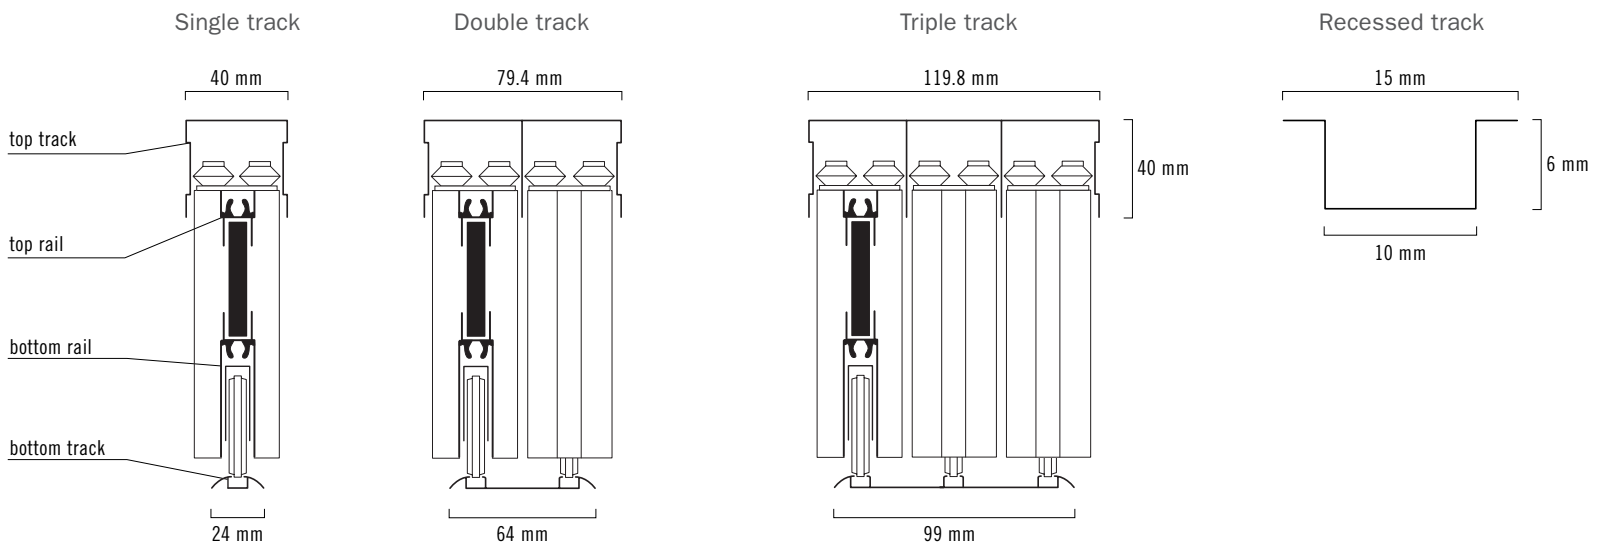

Draks uses a bottom-weighted track system, which rebates a spring-loaded wheel to the underside of the door, offering great practical advantages. It means the wider the door, the greater the stability (the converse of most top weighted systems). The top track acts as a guide only, thus allowing installation in places with problematic ceiling construction. The bottom track may be surface mounted and, being only 6mm does not cause an obstruction. It may also be recessed into carpet, laminate, hardwood floors or even marble and tiling. The top and bottom tracks are either single, double or triple.

↑ Single rebated track set directly into tiling.

↑ Triple rebated track set into timber.
